It’s too late for buyer’s remorse. Why L.A. can’t back out of hosting 2028 Olympics

International arbitration lawyer Nathan O'Malley speaks with the Los Angeles Times on the legal complexities surrounding the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics Host City Contract. “While one cannot foreclose all potential theories, it is hard to imagine a scenario where Los Angeles could terminate the HCC without facing substantial legal issues. Especially if the reason for ending the contract was a political disagreement between the federal, state and local branches of government.” Read the full article here.
